

Galerie Manteau 48

A young artist, named Poucette, who is jealous of the lures of Alice in Wonderland, exhibits at the Galerie Manteau (62, boulevard de Waterloo) a selection of pretty pictures, Whimsical, Poucette is fully with a very feminine grace. Her mostly illustrative talent is adorned with unforeseen detours and it will not be surprising if she readily "surrealizes" when it comes to harlequin or the mindless flyer. The tones are studied and sometimes recall secret Matisse accords. This painting hides under a mask of naivety, some charming perversities.
